

In 1728 the dividing line between Virginia and North Carolina was changed. The line was moved up into Nansemond County which meant that overnight many Nansemond County Virginia land owners were now living in North Carolina.